a classic restatement of the attitude of Americans towards A. KRINIZI their Government. In issuing Mayor an injunction to restrain the United States Government from carrying out its seizure of the steel companies, Judge Pine said that he could find no "express grant of power" for this purpose "in the Con-stitution" and that it was bas-billions of dollars and with what justification? The steel-masters raised a cry of indignant protest, the majority of Congress demonstrated yarious forms of sharp disapproval from threats to impeach the President to strong hints that the President would get no further legislative authority for economic controls of any kind; the majority of the Press took issue with the President and the public was bewildered and distressed.

President's Position

The President's position on the constitutional issue was a simple one. A steel strike and the public was simple one. A steel strike and the president and the public was simple one. A steel strike and the president of the companies, now have to fight for it. Saddest of all, President Truman, who cares passion-deleting the president and the public was simple one.
